QUICK THOUGHTS

- Phil Svitek
- Demetri Panos

DEVELOPMENT

- Based on the 2013 novel of the same name by Jason Matthews
- 20th Century Fox purchased the film rights, and signed Francis Lawrence to direct
- Lawrence worked on adapting Matthews' book in 2015, although he said he had reservations about the timeliness of a Cold War story
- Production company: TSG Entertainment, Chernin Entertainment

WRITING (Justin Haythe (screenplay by), Jason Matthews (based upon the book by))

- Matthews said the idea of "sparrows" and "sparrow school" was based on State School 4 in the Soviet Union, but Russian "sexpionage" is now done by women contracted outside of spy agencies
- The Russian concept of kompromat (compromising material for a public figure that can be used as blackmail, etc.) was also influential
- Screenwriter Justin Haythe reduced the number of narrators and shifting perspectives in the novel, concentrating on Dominika
- Vladimir Putin, who appears in the novel, was cut from the movie, due to Lawrence believing it would be a distraction to have an actor play the highly public figure
- Matthews, who said he based his book on his experiences in the CIA, was also hired as technical advisor, to supervise the accuracy of the depiction of espionage
- Justin Haythe is a writer and producer, known for Revolutionary Road, The Lone Ranger and A Cure for Wellness
- Jason Matthews is a retired officer of the CIA's Operations Directorate. Over a thirty-three-year career, he served in multiple overseas locations

STORY/TOPICS

- It tells the story of a Russian intelligence officer who is sent to make contact with a CIA agent in the hope of discovering the identity of a mole
- In modern day Russia, Dominika Egorova, a famed ballerina, who supports her ill mother
- Her uncle Ivan tasks her with seducing a Russian politician in order to replace his phone with a state-provided phone. She accepts so that her mother's medical treatments are paid for. Ivan kills the politician then offers Dominika a choice to begin working for Russian intelligence, or be executed because she knows too much.

- Dominika is sent to train to become a Russian operative, known as a 'Sparrow'
- Her first assignment is to gain the trust of Nate Nash, a CIA operative working in Moscow, and reveal his contact
- Dominika makes contact with Nash, who determines that she is a Russian intelligence operative. Dominika reveals her true identity to him, as well as her motive to find out Marble's identity. She offers to work for Nash as a double agent.
- After a meeting gone wrong, they require her to return to Moscow. She is tortured and interrogated for days. She repeatedly denies compromising Boucher, and convinces Ivan that she is now credible to the Americans
- Dominika returns to Budapest, and informs Nash that she wishes to defect with her mother to America
- Dominika awakes one morning to find Nash being tortured by Simionov, for him to reveal the identity of Marble. She kills Simionov to save Nash
- General Vladimir Korchnoi reveals that he is Marble and asks Dominika to turn him in so she will receive a promotion and be hailed as a hero
- Instead she frames her uncle Ivan as the mole rather than betray Korchnoi. Ivan is killed by the Russian side, and Dominika is congratulated for her work

PRODUCTION (Jo Willems)

- Principal photography started in Budapest and Dunaújváros in Hungary on January 5, 2017
- Other filming locations include Festetics Mansion in Dég, Hungary; Bratislava, Slovakia; and Vienna, Austria

EDITING/VFX (Alan Edward Bell)

- Worked on Hunger Games, 500 Days of Summer
- Bell said “We didn’t want [the movie] to feel too warm”
- “We had a cut that was 150 minutes and showed it to people who thought it was awesome. Then we thought it would be great if we could get it down to 130 minutes. When we showed people that version, they didn’t like Dominika. As an editor, you have to realize that it’s about whether you’re engaged or not, whether the characters and plot are enough to keep you involved. We learned something from that audience testing and so we ended around the 140-minute mark.”
- For Bell it was important that Dominika be a likeable character, in his editing he made sure to show her as an emotional character with a conscience, not a robot

SOUND/MUSIC (James Newton Howard)
